SUMMER SESSION CLOSES AT N. D., 127 GRADUATES

The Reverend Francis P. Cavanaugh, C. S. C., Delivered Commencement Address—Many Sisters and Other Religious Receive Degrees With Praise

At brief but impressive exercises held on Tuesday evening the Rev. Charles O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, conferred degrees upon the graduates of the annual summer session of the University. This was, priests, Brothers and Sisters. A large number of these received the degree of master of arts. Many attained high average in their work and received their degrees with praise.

In all, one received the degree of doctor of philosophy, 35 were made masters of arts, 7 masters of science; the degree of bachelor of arts was conferred on 53, bachelor of science in physical education one, bachelor of science in mechanical engineering on one, electrical engineering on four; chemical engineering on one. Five received the degree of bachelor of architecture; the degree of bachelor of laws was conferred on one and twelve received degrees from the college of commerce.

The Rev. Francis P. Cavanaugh delivered the address, stressing the fact that the noblest ideal of a Catholic university is the graduation of cultured men and women. Father Cavanaugh pointed out that culture implies proper development, moral, mental and physical. He praised the sacrifice of those who had left the ordinary pursuits of the world for the purpose of passing on this culture to the young. The reverend orator pointed out that moral and mental training cannot be realized unless the doctrines of Christ in their integrity hold first place in the mind of the individual. To accomplish this, he said, was the aim of Notre Dame.

Father Cavanaugh interestingly declared that Cardinal Newman's definition of a gentleman had been widely misunderstood. Rightly interpreted, Cardinal Newman declared that a gentleman was one who inflicts no pain whatsoever on God by his life and inflicts no pain needlessly on his fellow-men.

Congratulating the graduates, he reminded them that they would carry in their various walks of life whatever of good Notre Dame had been able to give them. He asked them to labor in the spirit of the just steward mentioned in the gospel.

The event was largely attended, many friends and relatives of the graduates being present.

Priest Lecturer Tells Duties of Religious Orders

New York.—All the consecrated religious of the Catholic Church deem it their duty to assist their fellow-creatures, and those religious especially under assistance to society who pass their lives in the seclusion of convents, monasteries, devoting the greater part of their time to prayer, the Rev. The "Catholic Hour" is sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men and is broadcast over a network of the National Broadcasting Company from Station WEAH in this city.

Prominent Prelate Dies

ARCHBISHOP MESSMER

U. S. Catholic Daily, Marking Anniversary, Lauded by La Croix

Paris.—A recent issue of La Croix, Catholic daily of Paris, paid tribute to the Catholic Daily Tribune, which is celebrating its tenth anniversary this year.

"Our Catholic confrere of Dubuque, Iowa, U. S. A., the Catholic Daily Tribune," the article reads, "has just celebrated on July 1, last, and with it its readers and admirers, the tenth anniversary of its foundation.

"With all our heart we join in the manifestations of sympathy displayed toward the Catholic Daily Tribune and we send to our young colleague the felicitations and best wishes of the specifically Catholic and religious press, has led with the same ardor as it, but over a period of fifty years, the good fight for God, His Church and the salvation of souls.

"The Catholic Daily Tribune is a journal full of typically American variety, sure and abundant information from the point of view of civil news as well as religious. For the foreigner it is likewise, in a greatly appreciated sense for us, a precious source of information on American life where the facts are studied in its editorials with a critical discrimination the vivacity of which does not exclude Christian charity and the justice due everyone.

"The Catholic Daily Tribune carries under this subtitle: 'The first and only English Catholic daily in America.' We believe it is also the only Catholic daily at present in the United States. Other attempts have been made, particularly in the German language, but after a short time they have been discontinued.

"The anniversary of the Catholic Daily Tribune presents the question of the Catholic daily journal in the United States. It is astonishing, in deed, that in the immense republic where more than twenty million Catholics live and prosper there can not be launched and maintained successfully not one but many Catholic daily journals. One seems, it appears, to fear that a journal of a specifically religious character would not draw more Catholics than indifferent ones.

"The example of the Catholic Daily Tribune, then, proves all the more that willingness, energy, wise devotion, when they are well directed, can overcome difficulties and surmount them. It demonstrates that it is possible for an essentially Catholic journal, while consecrated to giving to religious information the place that it deserves, can give general civil news as abundantly as the worldly press, but with more discernment, which is a guaranty for the morality of the reader that is not found elsewhere. It is that fact above all others that has made an organ such as the Catholic Daily Tribune through its frank position find encouragement not only among Catholics but with Protestants. And while one complains of the small number of conversions in the United States, not one can imagine the good that can be done among our separated brothers if the number of purely Catholic sheets were multiplied if a solid organization could assure their existence and propagation."

ARCHBISHOP MESSMER DIES AT THE TOWN OF HIS BIRTH

End Comes Suddenly for Aged Prelate at Goldach, Switzerland—Came to America in Early Life.

Washington.—The Most Rev. Sebastian Gebhard Messmer, fourth Archbishop of Milwaukee, Wis., died Monday at Goldach, Switzerland, the town of his birth, according to advices received at the Apostolic Delegation here. Funeral services for His Grace were held at Goldach on Thursday, the advices also stated.

Archbishop Messmer was in his eighty-third year. He had been a priest for more than 59 years, a Bishop for more than 38 years, and Archbishop of Milwaukee for more than 26 years. He was received by His Holiness, Pope Pius XI, only a few weeks ago.

In September, 1924, while attending a meeting of the Bishops at the Catholic University of America, here, Archbishop Messmer was taken suddenly ill on the final day of the gathering. He had taken a prominent part in the discussions on the day previous. His Grace recovered from this illness, which was said at the time not to be alarming, and the following June was honored by Marquette University, Milwaukee, with the honorary degree Doctor of Laws. The degree was awarded in recognition of the Archbishop's studies in early Wisconsin history, his sound and extensive scholarship in canon law and theology; his great influence for good in the community as man and citizen as well as faithful shepherd of his flock, and his indefatigable and successful administration of a great archdiocese.

Archbishop Messmer went to Rome in the summer of 1925, and also visited his old home at Goldach. His Grace was received in audience again by His Holiness in July, 1927.

Archbishop Messmer was stricken with bronchitis and pneumonia at Christmas-time of 1928, and was confined to his bed for months. In March, 1929, His Grace's condition was said to be grave, and the Last Sacraments were administered. The Archbishop, then 81 years old, was said to be in a coma most of the time. Msgr. Bernard G. Traudt, Vicar General, took over the duties of the Archbishop during his illness.

In January, of this year, Archbishop Messmer, while in Baton Rouge, La., was stricken with a severe cold that threatened to develop into pneumonia. His Grace was ill for several months with the attack, and, in April of this year, it was announced that he would not return to his See for Easter, but would await warmer weather before traveling north.

However, in May of this year, Archbishop Messmer officiated at the opening of the new $2,500,000 St. Joseph's Hospital in Milwaukee. On this occasion he celebrated a solemn Pontifical Mass and blessed the building.

Only a short while before sailing for Europe, His Grace ordained a group of priests for the Archdiocese of Milwaukee, and conferred the Sacrament of Confirmation on a large number of children.

The Most Rev. Sebastian G. Messmer, D.D., D.C.L., Archbishop of Milwaukee, in his long apostolate, and proved himself an able administrator, a man of profound learning, a prolific and authoritative writer and a zealous builder of the Church, in the physical as well as the spiritual sense. Churches, schools, hospitals; numerous writings, and above all a consistent record for devotion and piety are the things he left behind him to attest the efficacy of his life's work.

Archbishop Messmer was born August 20, 1847, near the picturesque Lake Constance in St. Gall canton, Switzerland. He attended the local parish school, where his early inclination toward a pious life led naturally to his taking his academic course at the preparatory seminary of St. George, at St. Gall. Thence he went to the famous Innsbruck University where his zeal for the religious life multiplied.

For a time he considered joining the Jesuit order and entering the missionary field. But just at this time an incident occurred that definitely fixed the ardent young man's field of labor and shaped his future. On his way to Rome, the venerable Bishop Baile of Newark, N. J., stopped at Innsbruck. He interested the youthful student intensely in the work that lay before the Church in America, and young Messmer decided that there lay his life's work.

The call to the Episcopate came in 1891, unwelcome to Dr. Messmer in a sense because teaching was with him a great passion. Bishop Zardetti consecrated him Bishop March 27, 1892, and he went immediately to Green Bay to assume the See left vacant by the elevation of Archbishop Kater to the Archdiocese of Milwaukee. He plunged into his new work with the ardor of a zealous man in his prime, and when in 1903 he went on to the higher post of Archbishop of Milwaukee, he left impressed on the diocese the mark of his work, in a flourishing See.

Shriners Visit a Real Shrine

Montreal.—After the recent convention of the Mystic Shriners at Toronto, a number of them, particularly Americans, on their return via Montreal, visited the Oratoire of St. Joseph of Mount Royal, where Frere Andre is located. In the shrine they assumed a most respectful attitude, though, of course, all non-Catholics.

OFFICIAL COLLECTION FOR INFIRM PRIESTS

On next Sunday, August 17, the annual collection for aged and infirm priests will be taken in all churches and missions of the Diocese.

More than 2,000 Catholics attended.

Missionary Plane Safe On Coast as Long Flight Ends

San Francisco.—Ready for its winter flights over the mission stations of Alaska, the airplane "Marquette Missionary" landed here at Mills Field. It was piloted by Brother Geo. J. MEXICAN CATHEDRAL UNDAMAGED UNDER GOVERNMENT CARE

Building In Good Condition as Catholics Regain Control of Property—Some of Withheld Treasures to Be Kept In Museum.

By Alberto Maria Carreno
Mexico City.—As the representative of the Catholic Church authorities in these matters, I have been engaged since July 19 in formally receiving back from the Department of Finance the Cathedral of Mexico City property. It will take at least 10 days more to complete the transfer of the property from the control of the Government to the control of the Church authorities.

I have been receiving the property through inventory, and up to the present time I have encountered no difficulty whatever. My impression is that if there was some looting of the Cathedral property at the first moment it was taken over by the Government, everything has been kept in perfectly good order since it came under the control of the Department of Finance.

Government Retains Some Treasures.
I regret exceedingly that some of the most beautiful treasures, such as ornaments, vestments and the like, will be retained by the Government. But, as I have obtained assurance that the museum for which the Government is retaining them will be established within the boundaries of the Cathedral, I expect that these treasures will always be seen as a part of the Cathedral, even though no longer under its guardianship. No one has a really complete idea of what all these treasures are. Among them are real wonders of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

The reservation of these treasures by the Government for a museum does not mean that the Cathedral will be deprived of the objects necessary for the services, for the number of vestments, chalices, and the like, is very large. Among the vestments, chalices, and other sacred objects already delivered to me are several of incomparable beauty.

Another Church to Be Restored
It is a source of great gratification that in a day or so now, I will also receive back, in behalf of the Church authorities, the Church of "La Soledad" which has been closed for nearly six years. The religious persecution formally begun with the seizure of this church because it was the one selected by General Calles to start the "Mexican Church," a movement which failed completely. At any rate, I hope that within a month or more it will be opened again to public worship, despite the repairs that must first be made to the walls and roof.

Priest Formerly An Official of the Labor Union to Visit U. S.

London.—A priest who was formerly a labor union official—Father Alfred Winsborough, at Cardiff—is leaving here in a few days for his first visit to the United States, where he will study social problems.

Father Winsborough is visiting, besides New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Fort Wayne, Chicago, and Detroit. He has arranged to give several addresses.

Father Winsborough was, before his ordination, a trade union official and organizer. He is now chairman of the Catholic Social Guild in Wales and a member of the national executive board.

Father Winsborough is one of the very few priests to receive an invitation to talk to "left wing" laborites. He talked to them frankly, criticizing their policy, and received hearty cheers at the end.

Irish Archbishops Receive Legacy From Spaniard

Dublin.—A legacy of approximately $250,000 to the Most Rev. Edward J. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, for the purpose of supplying free meals or meals at a nominal cost to poor laborers and artisans in this city has been brought to public attention through an application made in the High Courts, Dublin Castle, for a declaration that His Grace is at liberty to devote the money to this purpose.

The lawyers who appeared for Archbishop Byrne said that the matter rose out of the will of General de la Sausa, of the Spanish Army, who died over sixty years ago, leaving $10,000 to each of the four Catholic Archbishops of Ireland for the improvement of the "straggled" schools in their dioceses, and the residue to the Catholic Archbishop of Dublin for the purpose of providing meals for the poor of the city.

Catholic Hour Speakers

The Rev. Benedict Bradley, O. S. B., of St. Mary's Abbey, Newark, N. J., who will be the "Catholic Hour" speaker Sunday evening, August 10. His topic will be "St. Benedict." Below, the Rev. Dr. Francis J. Connell, C. S. S. R., of the Redemptorist House of Studies, Esopus, N. Y., who opened the religious founders series on the "Catholic Hour" last Sunday with the topic, "The Science of Sainthood."

Mother of the First U. S. Officer Killed Honors French Dead

Paris.—Mrs. Charles Fitzsimons, mother of the first American officer killed in the World War, a Catholic, placed a palm on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe in the name of the Gold Star Mothers. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Julia West.

Mrs. Fitzsimons arrived in France with group K, which comprised 234 mothers and widows. Interrogated by journalists she made the following statement:

"I have always ardently desired to visit the grave of my son. I am infinitely grateful to the French and American Governments for having facilitated this pilgrimage, thanks to which a great number of American mothers will come to know the sacred spots where repose the remains of their children.

"I have the sad privilege of having been the first to give mine for the cause of liberty. He was attached to the Harvard Medical Corps. He was killed during the bombardment by Germans of the hospital at Ypres.

"But it was not to serve our country alone that William entered the war. In 1914 he took part in the formation of the Red Cross in Belgium and he never ceased to lavish his care upon the wounded.

"At first he was buried at Ypres but his body was moved to the Somme Cemetery. You can imagine my emotion at the thought of soon kneeling before his grave."

The first Americans killed by the enemy after the United States entered the war were Lt. Fitzsimons and Privates Tugo, Rubino and Woods, all members of U. S. Base Hospital No. 5. They were killed at 10:55 p. m., September 4, 1917, when German bombs fell on a British hospital at Danes-Camiers where they were on duty.

"Lucas Malet" Granted Civil List Pension

London.—"Lucas Malet" (Mrs. Mary St. Leger Harrison) has been granted a Civil List pension of £100 ($500) a year "in recognition of her literary work."

Her father was indirectly responsible for the appearance of Cardinal Newman's "Apologia."

"Lucas Malet" has written many novels, the first of which, "Mrs. Lortimer," appeared in 1882.

Magnificent Illuminated Frame in St. Peter's

A close-up picture which gives a remarkable view of the magnificent illuminated frame above the altar in St. Peter's. Into this frame on the occasion of each beatification and canonization is set the picture of the one proclaimed Saint or Blessed. This picture was taken on the occasion of the recent beatification of Blessed Conrad of Parzham, the Capuchin lay-brother, whose picture is shown here. The pictures put into this magnificent setting are excellent oil paintings, specially prepared for the ceremonies.

PROMINENT IN THE OUTSTANDING HEADLINES OF THE DAY'S NEWS

VIENNA.—Is Austria to see another coup? The move which put Carol on the throne in Roumania was studied with intense interest here by politicians and statesmen who saw in it the possibility of the return of the royal family to power in Austria. Otto, 17 year-old son of the former Emperor Zita comes of royal age next November and it is rumored that he is being groomed for the position his late father abdicated when the fortunes of war went against him. It is said that his mother wants him to be king of Hungary if it is impossible for him to ascend to the throne in Austria. He is one of eight children.

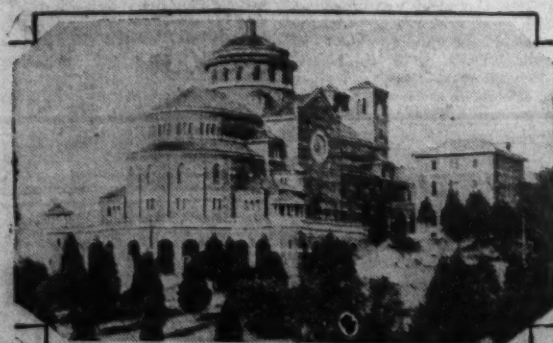

DUBLIN.—Neither a Lutheran minister nor a Christian Brother is the figure depicted here. It is Miss Kathleen Butler Garrett of Bryan, Okla., the first American woman to be called to the Irish bar. The wigs and barrister's robes common in Great Britain make Miss Garrett look like what she isn't. In this picture she is shown as she appeared at the ceremonies conducted by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Dublin. Much ado was made about the ceremony. Miss Garrett is a niece of the late Richard Croker who for years dominated New York politics.

HUNTINGTON, Ind.—Although there are hundreds of them represented throughout the United States, the establishment and maintenance of a religious community that is distinctly American in its founding and operation, is still a novel venture in this country. Religious communities established by Americans are comparatively few. One of the newest and most successful is the Society of Missionary catechists with a mother-house here at Victory-Noll. Already it has sent many bands of zealous women to the Mexican and Indian missions of the southwest. Assisting in the rapid development of the community is Catechist Ida Keller, assistant director at the Institute.
